CHEVALIER HULSEMANN—THE EXPEDITION OF FLORES AGAINST ECUADOR. SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE NEW YORK HERALD.

Chevalier Sulremann has obtained leave of absence from his government, for an indefinite period, and wil shortly leave for Europe. This has been granted him in consequence of his representations, that he could hold no intercourse of any kind with Mr. Webster. He will therefore, absent himself till Mr. Webster retires from the State Department. The friendly relations between the two governments are not, however, interrupted. Gen. Flores' movements in Equador, are destined to be of more importance than is generally imagined in this country. It is known here, that he is supported by the governments of Chili, Venezuela, and Peru, and in reality, that he represents the law and order party.

With such backing, there is little doubt of his ultimate success.

RUMOR THAT POSTMASTER HALL WILL RESIGN— PIRATES EXECUTED—WELLS REMOVED TO THE PENITENTIARY.

FROM A REGULAR CORRESPONDENT. WASHINGTON, April 23, 1852. There is a rumor current throughout the city that Postmaster General Hall will shortly resign. Wells, the convicted murderer, was to-day conveyed to bis cell in the Penitentiary. Crowds of people surrounded the gallows, which had been erected for his execution previous to the commutation of his sentence by the President, alt the morning, unaware, apparently, that the criminal was not to be executed.

The execution of the two convicted pirates took place at Richmond, to-day, at the appointed hour.

WASHINGTON, April 23, 1852. THE DIFFICULTY BETWEEN MESSES. MANGUM AND BROOKS-Mr. BROOKS, (whig) of N. Y., said he found a long article in the Congressional Globe, which referred to him and he therefore asked leave to make a personal explana-Curs "Agreed " "Agreed " "Go shoul " Mr. Stante, (whig) of N. C., wished to know how for other gentlemen would have a similar privilege? The SPEAKER asked-Does the gentleman object ? Mr. STANLY-I only want all others implicated or in-

New York. Mr. Brooms said he would not ask the privilege if it make the record.

Mr. STANLY remarked that he would have no objection if the gentleman would confine himself to what had been said of him in the Senate. If the gentleman alludes to others, then let them have an opportunity to reply.

Caus—Very well;" "Go on—go on."

Gentlemen clustered in the nighborhood of Mr. Brooks and there was intense anxiety all over the hall to hear him.

mr. Brooss, in his preliminary, said it had been his pride and ambition, while he had been a member of Congress, to devote himself exclusively to public business; and upon all occasions, and at all times, whetherer a preper topic was before the House, to confine himself to it. There were in Mr. Mangum's speech various allegations, and the forst was, that a certain letter, which appeared in the New York Express, was written or indited by him. Now in the most solemn manner he had already denied this. His position here as an editor had often embarassed him, and he had taken occasion to say, when he was first a member of the House that in all political or personal maters, or anything appertaining to persons, he would have no concern what ever, nor be in any degree responsible for what was in his paper, because, thinking if he did not adopt that course he should be holding personal relations with gentlemen of opposite politics or political relations, which from the greater freedem of newspaper discussion than that which exist upon the floor of this house, would very often pain and embarrass. He had refused to see anything which his correspondents had written before the letters were mailed but had insisted upon the striking out or omission of personal attacks upon members of Congress. In accordance with this rule had stricken from the letter since upon that gentleman from North Carolina reliections upon that can be with the strike of the proposal attacks upon members of Congress. In the mouth of almost every man—rumors of course, but the think of the proposal and the same language, for the language and thoughts were in the existence of which the write with a c

Fible overawe me and break me down as a public man. I ray it will require much more than that to overawe me in the discharge of my public duties, or make me neglect at any time, or upen any occasion fearlessly to utter my sentiments and do what I think is right. But the great cause of this charge is, in the other wine of the Capital In the discharge of my public duties, or make me neglect at any time, or upen any occasion fearlessly to utter my sentiments and do what I think is right. But the great cause of this charge is in the other wing of the Capitol. I implored the presiding officer there. If he was about to surrender me as a prisoner of war that I should have the soldier's honor of being shot, and not be strung up on a gallows by Northern abolitionists; that when the halter was about my neck I should be taken with Southern white men to the execution ground and not be dragged by African bondmen. One word more in justice to my Southern whig associates who may have misunderstood what I said here the other day in the House, namely, that the whig column fattered or wavered, and that was the reasen why the rest of the Northern national men were depressed, and why they staggered and why there was an apparent change in the record of the votes of this House. I cannot acknowledge that the chosen head of the column wavered—that he had been captured and taken by the enemy, and was in their possession—but I say now, with pleasure, that so far as I know, every Southern whig of the column no longer wavers, but is true and faithful to the constitution, and to the Northern men who are connected with the pledges to support the constitution. If there has been any misconstruction as regards that sentiment, I withdraw it, as to all of them. In that trying scene which occurred in the cabinet, when the great body of the South felt it necessary to separate from us Northern whigs, the sentiment of every Southern whig who remained behind was, that Northern men should be protected—that the pledges of the compromise should be fully surrained, and that no candidate for the Presidency should be put forth who would not come out tor the finality of the compromise measures, and who would not stand so recorded. It was due to us Northern men, that we should have such support from them; for, in the great hour of trial, two sessions ago, our services were necessary for survived the political shock; the rest were intried into political death by their connexion then with the South if we feel sensitive upon that subject amidst the adverse political epinion about us, and if we joined with them to execute an odious provision of the constitution, and in creating an American sentiment for its vindication and support; and if we desired and claimed their protection, we claimed only what is our due and right, and which, if they give us, we can support ourselves and our country upon the basis of our constitution.

Mr. Syranley remarked that he had not seen the article in the Congressional Globe. The gentleman hassaid nothing which calls for a personal reply upon my part. I leave it for the gentleman, who has been assailed, to take care of himself as he thinks proper, and can, if he pleases. I do not speak in his defence. He would not thank me if I attempted it, for that would imply that he needed it. He has spoken, to my regret, in the Senate, as I regret all personal matters here or elsewhere. If any defence were needed, I would call on my democratic colleague, (Mr. Venable.) who represents his district; or my other colleague, (Mr. Clingman.) who is on as friendly terms with the Senator (Mr. Mangum) as I am. I deplore, exceedingly, this state of things, and these charges, and counter charges, in the Senate and House. I only rose to say a single word in all calmness and without reflecting on anybody. The only part of the speech of the gentleman (Mr. Brooks) which touched me the other day, and which he has generously withdrawn, was the idea of Southern men wavering on the question of the compromise. I felt hurt at what I thought to be a charge of infidelity to the people who had honored me wish their confidence; and as the gentleman has referred to his remarks, made in the last Congress, of wooing tones towards Southern men, and flere tones towards southern men and ferre tones towards southern men of wavering, in that respect, is to say that they are destitute of patriotism and of person of fact. I think a majority of Southern men remained; that is my impression.

MONROR RAILROAD.

The House then passed the Senate bill for the relief of the Menroe Railroad Company and their securities, and agreed to a resolution to stop debate next Thursday on The House then went into committee on the latter bill. Mr. Yayrs (whig) of Ill., made a speech in favor of it. He was followed by

A CASE OF MANSLAUGHTER-OUTRAGEOUS APPAIR-A MURDEROUS ASSAULT ON CORONER IVES -- A CHILD KILLED BY THE EFFECTS OF LIQUOR.

Coroner Ives was yesterday called upon to hold an inquest on the body of a boy seven years of age, named Joseph White, who came to his death by taking several glasses of brandy, administered to him by a monster in human form named Thomas Kennedy, residing at No. 71 West Twenty-fifth street. The facts before the Coroner, ner, as far as elicited up to last evening, appear to show that, on Thursday afternoon, this Kennedy, who was at variance with the child's parents, induced the unsuspecting boy to go with him to the grocery store kept by Henry Techin, situated at the corner of Twenty fifth street and Sixth avenue, and while on their way there, hey met an elder brother of the lad, and all three visited the store together; and when there Kennedy directed Albert Boorfrank the clerk of the store, to give each of the boys agins of brandy. At first the boys refused to take it, but ultimately by tempting offers Kennedy induced the younger boy to drink the brandy without being mixed with water. After this Kennedy took the boys to his own house, and again induced the youngest boy to drink a glass of brandy and sugar. By this time the poor boy became insensible and was conveyed home by Kennedy in a stupified state, and the boy's mother informed of what had been done. The mother, for some time after the child was brought home, thought her son was asleep, and that the effects of the liquor would work off, and, therefore, applied no remedies for some time; but, after several hours had elapsed she became alarmed, and alministered some melted butter, in the hope that the child would throw up the liquor. This not having the desired effect, at elever o'clock for. Winters was sent for, who prescribed but to no effect, as the child died at four o'clock the next morning. Yesterday afternoon the Gromer proceeded to the premises of the deceased's parents, for the purpose of holding an inquest. Boorfrank the grover's clerk, was subparaned to give cridence before the jury. Dr. Budd, the Coroner's assistant, proceeded to the store, and served the subpona, but the witness refused to go, saying that he knew nothing about the matter. Coroner lives, on being informed of the fact that the witness refused to obey the summons, went himself to the store, and informed both fach that the witness refused to obey the summons, went himself to the store, and informed both of the first the wind, at the direction of the Coron that, on Thursday afternoon, this Kennedy, who was at variance with the child's parents, induced the unsuspecting
